About the cover

The breakfast burger and build-your-own bloody marys and mimosas at Corktown's Bobcat Bonnie's weekend brunch are some of the tastier reasons why hanging out in The D on a Sunday can't be beat.

IT'S HAPPENING

LARRY ALEXANDER, PRESIDENT AND CEO OF THE DETROIT METRO CONVENTION & VISITORS BUREAU (DMCVB), OFFERS AN HONEST OUTLOOK ON HOW DETROIT NEIGHBORHOODS, LANDMARKS AND SIGNATURE EVENTS ARE CONTINUING TO CHANGE, TAKE SHAPE AND GROW.

I'm in Detroit nearly every day. Whether I'm in my office at the DMCVB, emceeing an event, hosting a client, attending a charity function — you name it, and I'm there ready to tout the good that's happening in Detroit. And it's easy to do when you look around every corner and see and feel the city's transformation in action.

A new era is beginning with the recent announcement that our convention center, its naming rights now belonging to Chemical Bank, will be called TCF Center. The home of many internationally acclaimed events for decades, the convention center and its new identity are sure to shine, especially when it comes time for the 2020 North American International Auto Show. This event also makes a monumental shift, taking over Detroit in the warmer days of June next year rather than January.

Nearby, we watch as the demolition of Joe Louis Arena comes to a close and contemplate the limitless possibilities for this premium plot directly on the Detroit River. We celebrated, with much enthusiasm, when Wayne State University and the Detroit Pistons announced the construction of a $25 million basketball arena in Midtown. It's expected to be completed by early 2021. Add in Ford Motor Company's commitment to make over the landmark Michigan Central train station and the Corktown neighborhood into an innovation hub and mobility corridor, along with the retail and restaurant developments surrounding new hotels such as Shinola Hotel (see Page 42) and Element Detroit, and you'd be hard-pressed not to acknowledge the elemental changes taking place in the city.

At the DMCVB, we are in awe of the list of talking points we now have about what's new, what's coming and what's possible in Detroit. It seems to be never-ending and constantly evolving. The city has even garnered international acclaim in the U.K., Germany and China, with publications like Suitcase magazine and Lufthansa magazine proclaiming it as a travel destination to watch and visit. It's a great place to be, a place we are excited to share with you and thousands of other visitors coming to The D this fall and winter.

METRO DETROIT

THE 5 DISTRICTS OF DETROIT

Metro Detroit is living large these days, a dynamic region with lots of new developments. We've got distinctive cultural institutions, casino hotels and a transformed downtown riverfront, along with championship sports, exciting nightlife, loads of events and delicious dining.

Metro Detroit is also just large — literally. It's made up of five districts, covering nearly 2,000 square miles. Be sure to orient yourself with its geography.

AVOID CONSTRUCTION / GET TRAFFIC UPDATES

Mi Drive is your best resource. Find it at michigan.gov/drive. Route info, construction news and even links to road cameras so you can check traffic flow and reported incidents.

HEAR IT / SAY IT

We have some pretty funny ways of pronouncing our streets and roads. Here are a few examples to help you understand us. For starters, you'll hear us say dee-troyt or duh-troyt for our city.

Beaubien (boe-bee-un)
Cadieux (cad-jew)
Chene (shane)
Conant (cone-int)
Dequindre (dee-kwin-der)
Gratiot (grash-it)
Jos. Campau (joe-sef kom-po)
Lahser (lah-sir, lah-zer or lash-ur)
Livernois (liv-er-noy and sometimes liv-er-noise)
Schoenherr (shay-ner)
Vernier (ver-ner or vern-yer)

Downriver:

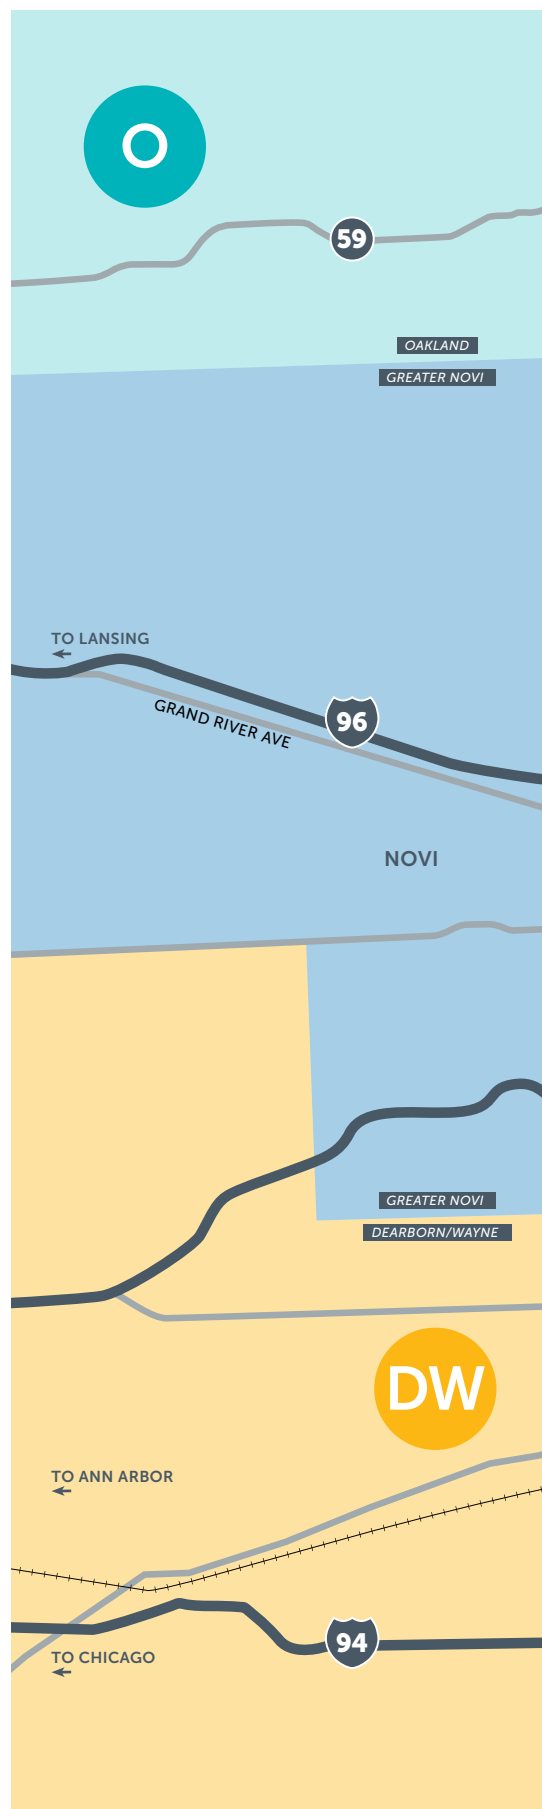

A loose term for 18 suburbs south of Detroit and down the Detroit River (e.g., Romulus, Taylor, Trenton, Wyandotte)

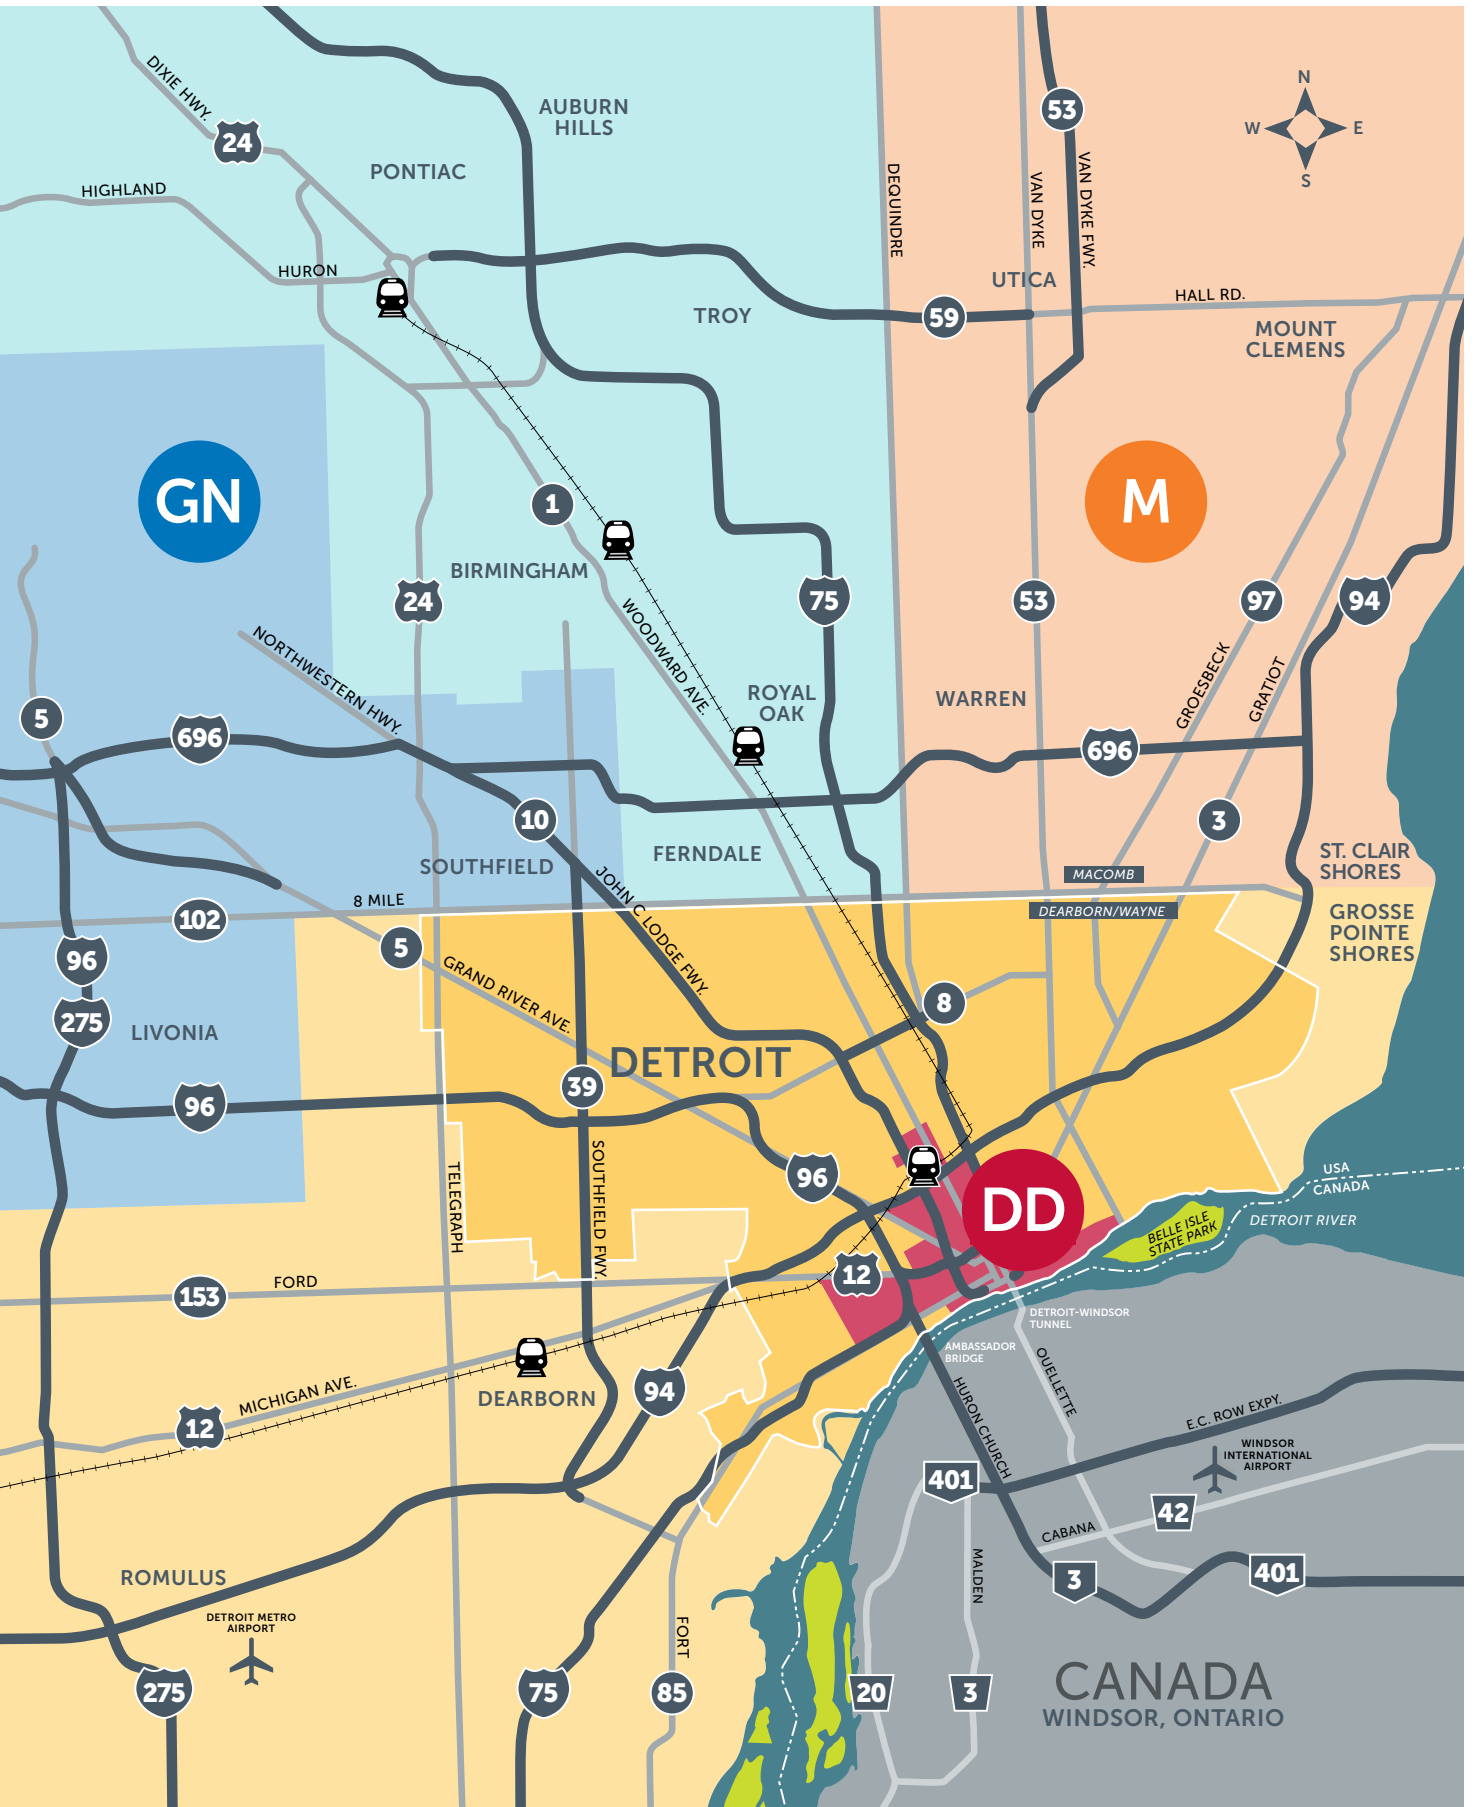

The East Side:

You'll find some discussion and argument among locals, but we say the dividing line is Dequindre Road. That means cities east of Detroit and this road, such as Roseville, Sterling Heights and Mount Clemens, are the East Side.

EMPIRE KITCHEN & COCKTAILS

Indulge in signature cocktails Forbidden Fruit or Sacred Nectar. These delicious drinks are just a couple of the temptations to lure you into Empire, where contemporary American fare reigns. Offers a great weekend brunch.

3148 Woodward Ave., Detroit, 48201; 313-315-3131 or empirekitchenandcocktails.com

LOS GALANES

Have the Botana Galan at Los Galanes. The Mexican restaurant proclaims this elaborate corn chip, chorizo, bean and cheese dish is as unique to Detroit as the Coney dog (see Page 35).

3362 Bagley Ave., Detroit, 48216; 313-554-4444 or losgalanesdetroit.com

THE RATTLESNAKE CLUB

Shake up your taste buds with a meal from the multi-award-winning restaurant. The menu changes seasonally, but perch from the Great Lakes and certified angus beef are regular, popular staples.

Empire Kitchen & Cocktails

Detroit Whisky Festival

Westview Orchards in Washington Township, EnJoya Sweets in Roseville, Honcho in Clarkston and Dilla's Delights in Detroit were among the winners at Donut Fest Detroit 2019 in Eastern Market.

TO DO

DETROIT WHISKY FESTIVAL

March 13. Some of the best whisky, bourbons and ryes from around the world gather together in Detroit's historic Eastern Market for this libation celebration. Tickets required.

Eastern Market, 2934 Russell St., Detroit, 48207; 313-399-6667 or facebook.com/detroitwhisky

THE NORTH END NEIGHBORHOOD

Detroit's North End is accessible via the QLine streetcar at the Grand Blvd. stop. If a true sense of the city's transformation is what you crave, this neighborhood brings it home. Share communal coffee at Gathering Coffee Co. Eat the best barbecue at Parks Old Style Woodward Bar-B-Q. Have cocktails at Kiesling. Appreciate art at Tangent Gallery. Put an old-fashioned sheen on your shoes at the legendary Red's Jazz Shoe Shine Parlor.

North End, Detroit, 48202; facebook.com/northenddetroit

PARKER'S ALLEY

Named after Thomas Parker, one of Detroit's first African-American landowners, Parker's Alley is located behind the new Shinola Hotel. It now houses an assortment of entrepreneurial businesses that you can stroll and shop, including Drought, The Lip Bar (see Genuine Article on Page 112) and Posie Atelier. 1400 Woodward Ave., directly behind Shinola Hotel, Detroit, 48226

RETAIL + ART

Detroit Is The New Black has a newly renovated premier retail shop on Woodward Avenue that also doubles as a space for art exhibits, classes, poetry slams and community collaboration.

COMFORT INN - DOWNTOWN DETROIT

Watch the sun set and rise over the Detroit River at Belle Isle State Park or the Detroit International RiverWalk. Then drive just blocks back to your cozy hotel. Shuttle service is also available to downtown attractions.

DETROIT WITH OUT-OF-TOWNERS,

HUBERT MASSEY

ARTIST

"I would take people on a tour of my artwork, which allows you to see Detroit history while visiting some of its best spots. I have 17 pieces in public places, from Campus Martius to the Federal Reserve Bank and Harmonie Park.

First, we'd go to the Detroit Institute of Arts to see the Diego Rivera frescoes (see sidebar at right). Next, I would take them to TCF Center to see my newest fresco Detroit - Crossroad of Innovation, which depicts Detroit as a center of innovation.

In the Charles H. Wright Museum, I designed the floor under the Ford Freedom Rotunda dome — it's 72 feet in diameter and all terrazzo. The museum, which shares the African-American experience, is an educational facility where people walk away with true enlightenment.

When you enter the lobby of Detroit's Atheneum Hotel, you'll see large murals of Greek mythology. I created those 27 years ago. The Atheneum is in Greektown, where restaurants like Pegasus Taverna (pegasustavernas.com) give visitors a real taste of the city. I also did the tile mural and sculpture piece at the Welcome Center pedestrian bridge in Mexicantown. There are great restaurants here for authentic Mexican food. My favorite is Mexican Village Restaurant (mexicanvillagefood.com).

On the east-facing side of the Detroit Foundation Hotel is a mural we just restored by Charles McGee, who is now 94. It's been an awesome experience to see a mural like this, that was done in the '70s, revived after all these years.

ONE IN A MILLION

The Detroit Institute of Arts' Detroit Industry frescoes, the largest in America, were painted by Diego Rivera in 1932-33. In the '80s, some of Rivera's former assistants came to The D to do some restoration work on their mentor's famous frescoes. They chose a dozen artists to help, hoping to teach them fresco techniques. Detroiters Hubert Massey was one of the 12, and is one of these invited artists who continues to practice this mural painting technique today. It's done the same way Michelangelo did the Sistine Chapel, said Massey, using river sand, lime, marble dust and oxidized pigments.

As Massey celebrates his latest public artwork, the fresco Detroit - Crossroad of Innovation in TCF Center, he continues to engage the next generation of young artists and train them in the fresco technique popularized by the legendary Rivera. Just as he was decades ago.

CAUSE, COMMUNITY AND A QUEEN

AS IF WE NEED TO LIST MORE REASONS TO LOVE OUR CITY ... BUT WHY NOT? HERE ARE A FEW PLACES, FACES, ITEMS AND EVENTS THAT MAKE DETROITERS ALL HAPPY AND TINGLY INSIDE.

Good Neighbor

Carli Goltowski once worked for Shinola, the luxury brand and manufacturer based in Detroit. Today, she is the owner of her own Detroit-based clothing shop called Good Neighbor, which is coincidentally — or maybe not so much — located on the first floor of Detroit's Shinola Hotel. But that's not the best part of this story. Good Neighbor, which carries men's and women's apparel along with custom city-themed items, is actually a good neighbor. With every sale, the shop donates dollars to Humble Design, a nonprofit in Pontiac that helps families transitioning from homelessness furnish their new residence.

Queen of Soul Gets R-E-S-P-E-C-T

We can't deny it: It's an honor that Aretha Franklin, who died in 2018, was posthumously awarded the Pulitzer Prize Special Citation. Even so, the city of Detroit won't be denied its due when it comes to showing R-E-S-P-E-C-T for the late Queen of Soul, a lover and resident of The D. Right away, we decided to rename Chene Park the Aretha Franklin Amphitheatre. Next, we started lobbying Congress to have a stretch of M-10 (aka the Lodge) named after her. It became the Aretha L. Franklin Memorial Highway this past summer. And just to throw it out there: In 2017, long before that Pulitzer thing, a section of Madison Street in Detroit was baptized Aretha Franklin Way.

Motor City Street Dance Academy

The ingenuity of Detroiters looking to pay it forward appears endless these days. We've got amateur horticulturists planting trees and gardens to beautify neighborhoods. Undergrad students empowering homeless women by giving them jobs making sleeping bag coats for the homeless. And we've got b-boy Benito "Mav-One" Vasquez, who is channeling his love of hip-hop culture and street dancing to teach kids in southwest Detroit, where he grew up, how to be entrepreneurs and artists as well as accountable, responsible human beings. Vasquez runs Motor City Street Dance Academy, a safe space where anyone with a creative drive in music, dance and art can express themselves and their talents through the same culture he did as a teen. All the while, they are also cultivating the skills they possess to become productive people in their communities.

us

In 2016, the World Food Travel Association conducted the largest survey of food travel to date and found that more than 60 percent of us take pictures of our food when we travel. More than 80 percent of respondents also said that food helps them understand the culture of the place they are visiting. In today's world of so many choices, food is becoming a larger part of why and where we choose to spend our vacations.

Detroit hasn't always been a food destination. But, with 100+ restaurants opening in metro Detroit over the past three years, experts and influencers like the Chicago Tribune, National Geographic, Food & Wine magazine and mic.com are now singing the praises of Detroit's rising food scene.

That's why we decided it was due time to share our top picks of The D's newest favorites and most anticipated coming-soons. Six selections chosen as much for their owners' Detroit-inspired backstories as their menus.

CUISINE:

Vegan junk food?

MAY WE

The CMO Coney dog.
Your prerogative if you want to add the house-made "cheeze" sauce.

According to Forbes, the number of Americans who identify as vegan increased more than 600 percent between 2014 and 2017. That means there's a lot of people looking for alternative menu options. But the new wave of vegan eating wasn't really the motivation behind the opening of CMO. For longtime vegan and owner Pete LaCombe, it came from a much simpler desire. "I missed junk food," he admitted. "In Detroit, we grow up eating National Coney Island. I missed the taste of a great Coney dog with all the toppings."

LaCombe decided to go vegan seven years ago, prompted by his love of food and his belief in the ethical treatment of animals. Growing up in a large, close-knit family, LaCombe credits his grandmother for teaching him his way around the kitchen. With his new vegan lifestyle, he took those lessons learned from the family kitchen to adapt and reimagine the classic flavors he craved.

At CMO, plant-based burgers like the Big Mock take a backseat to the popular Coney dog. The "chili" atop the meatless wiener really does taste like Detroit-style chili. You can even get it on an order of fries with CMO's very own "cheeze" for chili-cheese fries, the ultimate Detroit junk food feast.

After moving to Pittsburgh in 2012, metro Detroiters Kristen Calverley and her husband, Nathan Peck, turned their craving for Detroit-style pizza into a successful business — Michigan & Trumbull Pizza located inside Pittsburgh's Federal Galley, a restaurant accelerator.

Now they're coming back to their Michigan roots, bringing their easily distinguishable Detroit-style pizza to Detroit. Why is it distinguishable? That's easy: the menu.

"We thought very hard and carefully about toppings and flavor combinations," Calverley explained. "With a few exceptions, most Detroit-style pizza toppings are still really traditional. We decided to evolve and play with funky ingredients."

The St. Aubin Sausage pie has red sauce, mozzarella, broccoli, fennel sausage and crème fraîche. The Packard Pepperoni has red sauce, mozzarella, pickled chiles, pepperoni and house-made hot honey. Peck has also created a crust that is airy yet still crunchy and caramelized.

Peck and Calverley are excited to return to a Detroit that has changed immensely during their time away. The Corktown neighborhood they've chosen is one of the hottest in the city and is only a stone's throw from the intersection that inspired the name of their Pittsburgh success story.

While Michigan & Trumbull Pizza awaits the grand opening of its Corktown location, patrons can grab a slice at the pop-up location at Detroit's Fort Street Galley (fortstreetgalley.org) this fall.

Godwin Ihentuge took a gamble. He bet that his background in marketing paired with his father's recipes would be a hit in metro Detroit. He was right. Serving "culture in a bowl," Yum Village's Afro-Caribbean menu includes jerk chicken and black-eyed pea fritters, along with sweet and spicy plantains and jollof rice.

Before he was a restaurateur, Ihentuge was inspired to help others become successful. His early catering business was an evolving cultural experience where chefs rotated, allowing customers to taste their food and give feedback. This model of community support would later become the foundation for Yum Village. Ihentuge, for instance, has developed a commission-based model for employees, who easily make a livable wage. Even customers who refer catering jobs can earn a 20 percent referral fee.

Evolving from a food truck into a brick-and-mortar restaurant, Yum Village is clearly at a new beginning. It's New Center-area location is smack dab in the middle of rapid change as the neighborhood expects an influx of 2,800 new property units by the end of 2020. That means a lot more potential patrons to help fill Ihentuge's village.

Considered one of the finest independent American-made product companies, Shinola partnered with Bedrock to open the Shinola Hotel in Detroit in 2018. When it came to the hotel's food and beverage management, Shinola turned to NoHo Hospitality of New York City. Headed by chef Andrew Carmellini and restaurateurs Luke Ostrom and Josh Pickard, NoHo owns or manages over a dozen iconic restaurant brands. The partnership has brought a level of creativity, service and training to Detroit that's hard to beat.

San Morello is the hotel's anchor restaurant. Featuring a contemporary Italian menu designed by Carmellini, San Morello is a delicious breakfast, lunch, dinner and brunch fine-dining experience. The restaurant has been perfectly conceptualized to serve hotel guests' needs and includes an exclusive street entrance for its private dining room.

The Brakeman is Shinola Hotel's more casual food experience. Styled after European beer halls, it features beer tap tables, dozens of rotating craft beers as well as classic craft spirits. The restaurant was designed with garage doors that can open in warmer months to both Parker's Alley retail and Farmer Street, creating a gorgeous indoor/outdoor space for shopping, sipping and strolling.

Food served at The Brakeman is supported by Penny Red's carryout-only fried chicken joint on Farmer Street. Carmellini perfected the menu at his NYC restaurant Dutch before he brought it to Detroit. The options are simple: buckets of chicken, sandwiches and sides. Customers can order at Penny Red's and then take their spoils to a table at The Brakeman. Surprisingly, the process makes for a smooth flow of guests and a more interactive experience for them in the space.

CUISINE:

Yes. Wine is food.

MAY WE

RECOMMEND:

A bottle, not just a glass, of the 2016 Cabernet Franc Rose

Detroit Vineyards is located in a renovated section of Detroit's historic Stroh's ice cream factory.

Fine and specialty wineries have established themselves all over northwest and southwest Michigan as well as the Upper Peninsula. But down here in the city, a winery hadn't existed for more than 60 years according to regarded area newspapers like the Detroit Free Press. Not until winemaker Blake Kownacki moved back in 2010 to the hometown he calls "the best city on Earth."

With more than 15 years' experience making wine in California and Australia, Kownacki pushed back against the idea that great grapes couldn't be grown in the city of Detroit. "It's important for me to express the region in my wine," Kownacki explained. Teaming up with Michigan State University's viticulture program, he is exploring urban vineyard options in the city. Community Affairs Coordinator Thomas Roberes is already helping make it a group project in Detroit's MorningSide neighborhood, where vines planted in collaboration with residents are "beautiful, hardy and soon to be fruitful," said Roberes. "We're not just growing grapes," he added. "This is an oasis of green space, a community vineyard where residents can become a part of a new wine/grape economy."

Detroit Vineyards also recently launched a food program. It's light fare for now, with options like charcuterie and a cider dip with soft pretzels, which features a dry cider and cheddar cheese dip topped with scallions. "The wine comes first here," Kownacki said. "But we have fun finger food that pairs well."

Fusion Flare Kitchen & Cocktails

LOCATION:

16801 Plymouth Road, Detroit, 48202

CUISINE:

A little bit of soul, lots of local ingredients

MAY WERECOMMEND:

The lamb chops or crispy chicken wings. Add a side of the collard greens.

Located on a street that's best known for auto repair shops and churches, Fusion Flare is the first dine-in restaurant to open in Detroit's Joy community in nearly two decades. That's amazing.

It's all because of Mashelle Sykes, a former employment specialist for the City of Detroit who always had a passion for food. Sykes eventually enrolled in Oakland Community College's culinary arts program, attending school part time. After graduating, she decided to put her food-led vision into action. Like many Detroiters, she first tossed around the idea of relocating and opening her restaurant in another city. The resurgence of her hometown, however, made staying a more appealing option.

Fusion Flare Kitchen & Cocktails has a traditional American menu with soul-satisfying entrees like buttermilk fried chicken and pork or lamb chops with a ginger glaze. Special care and attention are also placed on the bar. Craft cocktails, an expertly curated wine list and a high-level of customer service from the bartenders make the dine-in experience unforgettable.

Where downtown's development has been the headline, Fusion Flare is a noble story of renewal in one of the city's farther-reaching westside neighborhoods.

SUN- DAY FUN DAY

In Detroit, Sundays

We've got you covered on all the ways to wind up — not wind down — your Sundays in metro Detroit.

BY CASSANDRA SPRATLING

culturally speaking

Get Enlightened

Detroit's Cultural Center, an easy 15-minute QLine ride from Campus Martius Park, puts you in an area where you can easily walk to and enjoy the Detroit Historical Museum (detroithistorical.org), Detroit Institute of Arts (dia.org), Michigan Science Center (mi-sci.org), Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History (thewright.org) and the Detroit Public Library (detroitpubliclibrary.org) — all in one day, if you so choose.

Yeah, we said library. Its hallowed halls are not only a book lover's heaven but marvels to behold. Among the library's art to adore: John Stephens Coppin's 1964 three-panel mural Man's Mobility, which fittingly celebrates modes of transportation. The Detroit Public Library is known to host an event or two on any particular Sunday — a noted author's reading, a jazz combo or a yoga session are among its beyond-books offerings.

If you skip out on library time, go walk the brick streets of Old Detroit at the Detroit Historical Museum, or stroll through the permanent exhibit And Still We Rise at The Wright, depicting the perseverance and power of African-Americans. Make your way to the DIA and appreciate masterpieces by masters like Rivera, Degas and Van Gogh. While there, check out independent films at the Detroit Film Theatre (dia.org/dft). A little-known secret: the DIA's cafeteria-style eatery, Café DIA, has really good eats and is open Sundays from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

With the Kids

Get hands-on at Michigan Science Center, which has more than 250 exhibits and three theaters, including a planetarium. Every Sunday at 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., there are live stage shows that bring science to life. Other not-to-be-missed Sunday spots, especially for families, include the Outdoor Adventure Center (OAC) (michigan.gov/oac), just east of downtown Detroit on the riverfront, and The Henry Ford (thf.org) in Dearborn. "There's a lot of doing, not just seeing," said Linda Walters, director at the OAC. "We offer an active way for kids and adults to feel like they're outdoors." Those ways include getting in a rowboat and mimicking fishing, plus various forms of archery. Sometimes, weather permitting, you might be invited to actually go outdoors for ice fishing, snowshoeing or sledding.

At The Henry Ford, you've got Hallowe'en in Greenfield Village multiple nights in October, or during the really cold months there's Henry Ford Museum of American Innovation, open every Sunday 9:30 a.m.-5 p.m., where the Towers of Tomorrow with LEGO Bricks traveling exhibit runs Oct. 12-Jan. 5.

FAMILY ANTICS

From top: The powerful stories of African-Americans shared in the And Still We Rise exhibit at The Wright, the spooky entertainment during Hallowe'en in Greenfield Village and the lessons with nature offered up at Detroit's Outdoor Adventure Center all cater to kids' sensibilities.

City as a Canvas

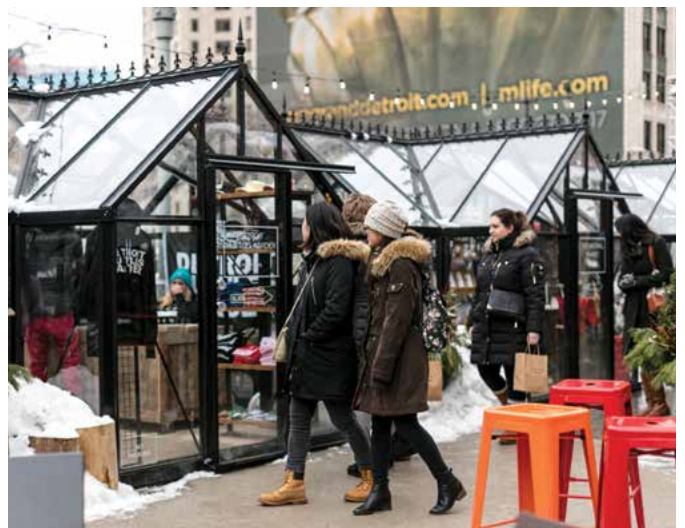

For a grittier but no less fabulous introduction to art in Detroit, take a Sunday stroll or bike ride, and view some of the city's finest murals, many breathing new life into old brick buildings and concrete structures. Thanks to outdoor sculpture sanctuaries like Lincoln Street Art Park and annual events such as Murals in the Market (muralsinthemarket.com), which began five years ago, Detroit is a canvas for international and local artists. More than 125 murals, for example, now adorn spaces in the city because of Murals in the Market. Most can be found around historic Eastern Market.

Park It

Throughout the late fall and winter months, Campus Martius Park (downtowndetroitparks.com) is lit with festive lights and activities, beginning the evening of Nov. 22, the night of the Detroit Tree Lighting Ceremony.

An open plaza in the heart of downtown, Campus Martius Park is a popular gathering place for ice skating or simply taking in the attractive views. The Rink opens for skating the evening of the holiday tree lighting and remains open through early March. Hours vary through the week, but on Sundays it's typically open by noon and closes around midnight. Also around the same time as the tree lighting, nearby Cadillac Square and Capitol Park open pop-up markets that run through early January. After that, the area surrounding Campus Martius Park transforms into a wonderland of family activity for Winter Blast, held on select weekends typically in mid-January and February.

fun and games

Any Given Sunday

In the fall, when there's a Detroit Lions home game, Eastern Market (easternmarket.org) trades in its farmers market persona and transforms into tailgate central. "It's a huge party," said Lonni Thomas, market manager. "We easily get 5,000 to 6,000 people per game." And they arrive with grills, speakers and movie-size screen monitors. "I've even seen people bring in a mobile Jacuzzi," added Thomas.

Although space can be found on nearby streets, it's best to rent parking spots from Eastern Market Corp. The cost is $45 per space, offered on a first-come, first-served basis. Make reservations at easternmarket.org, or on game day stop by the office at 2934 Russell St., which opens at 7 a.m., to check availability. Shuttles run every 15 minutes from the market beginning 90 minutes before games start and an hour after games end. $5 per person.

The Detroit Lions (detroitlions.com) also offer a free pedestrian-friendly tailgate experience in front of Ford Field on game days. Brush Street, between John R and Montcalm, becomes one big block party called Pride Plaza. Open to all — whether you have a ticket to the game or not — Pride Plaza fun begins a half hour before the gates open and lasts until kickoff.

Beacon Park (dtebeaconpark.com), the city's newest park, has entered the football pre- and post-party scene, too, featuring a place to tailgate and a warm, dry area to watch select Lions games and the area's most popular college football games, such as Michigan State vs. University of Michigan. A variety of non-football activities run year-round at the park as well.

TOUR TIME

Sports fans can get an up-close look at two of downtown Detroit's sports facilities. Ford Field (fordfield.com) and Little Caesars Arena (313presents.com) — home of the Detroit Red Wings and Detroit Pistons — host tours in the fall and winter. Ford Field is available for group and individual tours by appointment on non-game days only. LCA tours are offered by appointment only on Sunday game days (detroitredwings.com/tours).

PARTY HARDY

Sundays and a Detroit Lions game equate to lots of organized tailgating activities in downtown Detroit, including at Beacon Park (above).

Bringin' Brunch

It seems like if you blink, there's a new restaurant in town, adding to the diverse landscape of places to eat, drink and party. (See story on Page 38.) There's a number of reputable Detroit-area brunch spots you won't want to miss on any given Sunday, including Bobcat Bonnie's (bobcatbonnies.com), which encourages patrons to design their own mimosas and bloody marys. Laid-back yet lively, Honest John's (honestjohnsdetroit.com) in the Cass Corridor keeps brunch friendly on the budget and serves a highly praised chicken and waffles. With too many "best of brunch" wins to count, Dime Store (eatdimestore.com) is obviously a solid choice, too. Order the brioche french toast or veggie hash. For those living a vegetarian/vegan lifestyle, Brooklyn Street Local (brooklynstreetlocal.com) is your go-to brunch spot. From 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. every weekend, the menu features tasty vegan options from banana walnut pancakes to poutine.

At The Apparatus Room inside the Detroit Foundation Hotel (detroitfoundationhotel.com/apparatus-room), you'll find live jazz once a month during Sunday brunch. Pair any one of its plated offerings with the Foundation Bloody, which uses all Detroit-made ingredients: Detroit Foundation gin (made in collaboration with Detroit City Distillery), Norden aquavit and McClure's bloody mix.

Or enter from the back at La Dolce Vita (ldvrestaurant.net) for plated Sunday brunch from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. Live piano music accompanies the menu that includes salmon hash and Italian-style french toast.

It'd be hard to argue that there's a more romantic place to dine in metro Detroit than The Whitney (thewhitney.com). This charming restaurant offers a three-course plated brunch from 10 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. and a four-course high tea at 2 p.m. every Sunday. Additionally, every first and fourth Sunday, guests can participate in tours and a dining experience from 5:30 - 9:30 p.m. that includes a walk-through of the mansion, a five-course meal and paranormal tour that the restaurant's Director of Operations David Duey describes as "an authentic ghost hunting."

After-Brunch Merriment

If you're looking to pass away your Sunday with just a good drink and good company, go to Candy Bar (thesirenhotel.com), which Architectural Digest named the "most beautifully designed bar" in Michigan. Inside the Siren Hotel, it's open Sundays, 5 p.m. - 1 a.m. Or you can head to Bert's Market Place (bertsentertainment.com) in Eastern Market. Known for its barbecue and music, the entertainment complex features a theater, jazz room and a Motown room. Sunday night is open-mic night.

In the Wayne State University neighborhood, you'll find the nothing-fancy-but-fun Bronx Bar on Second Avenue, which attracts the college crowd and locals who enjoy a good beer, burger and game of pool. And we'd be remiss if we didn't mention Baker's Keyboard Lounge (theofficialbakerskeyboardlounge.com) for a Sunday stop. Many of America's jazz greats have played Baker's, which prides itself on being called the world's oldest jazz club.

MEAL OF THE DAY

Sundays and brunch pair well in downtown Detroit, where staples like (from top) The Apparatus Room, Honest John's and Bobcat Bonnie's serve up some of the city's best.

worth your worship

Metro Detroit is home to some of the nation's most architecturally arresting and historic churches, temples and synagogues. Parishioners not only welcome you to join in Sunday worship, but several offer public tours of their stunning spaces.

Mariner's Church, once a stop on the Underground Railroad, holds Sunday mass at 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Each year, this independent Anglican church, established to serve mariners, also holds a Blessing of the Fleet (typically on a Sunday in March) for those going to sea, and a Great Lakes Memorial service (Nov. 10) for those who have lost their lives at sea. The memorial coincides with the sinking of the S.S. Edmund Fitzgerald, the ship's story so eloquently sung by Gordon Lightfoot in the song The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald. marinerschurchofdetroit.org

Ste. Anne de Detroit Church is a neo-Gothic Revival cathedral-style church built in 1886. The parish's original structure opened in 1701, making it Detroit's oldest church and America's second-oldest continuously running Catholic church. Tours are offered on weekdays only, but participants at Sunday mass can certainly appreciate the spectacular sanctuary featuring more than 100 panels of stained glass. Masses are held at 8:30 a.m., 10 a.m. and noon on Sundays. ste-anne.org

Temple Beth El

Old St. Mary's Catholic Church

Old St. Mary's Catholic Church in Detroit's Greektown neighborhood is the first German Catholic church and the third-oldest Catholic church in the city. On Sundays, self-guided tours with pamphlets are offered after the three scheduled masses at 8:30 a.m., 10 a.m. and noon. oldstmarysdetroit.com

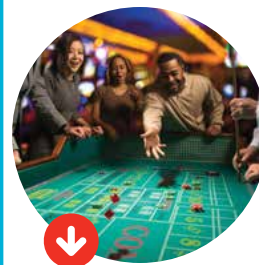

Temple Beth El, now located in Bloomfield Hills, became Michigan's first Jewish congregation in 1850. The massive and magnificent modern structure was designed by famed architect Minoru Yamasaki (World Trade Center, Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, among others). Services are held on Friday evenings and Saturday mornings. Tours can be scheduled online. tbeonline.org

Second Baptist Church in Greektown once served as a station on the Underground Railroad. In addition to tours after Sunday services that must be arranged prior to visiting, the church offers tours related to its significance for escaped slaves. secondbaptistdetroit.org

One of the zoo's most anticipated annual events displays more than 5 million points of LED light in the form of animal sculptures wrapped around trees or cascading down buildings. Within the breathtaking spectacle are special holiday-themed activities and entertainment for the entire family.

O / Detroit Zoo, 8450 W. 10 Mile Road, Royal Oak, 48067; 248-541-5717 or detroitzoo.org.

Kona Chocolate Run

Nov. 17. It's so much easier to run knowing Sanders Bumpy Cake awaits you at the finish line. Race through 5 or 10 kilometers of charming downtown Plymouth, then celebrate with a chocolate buffet party. There's a heated tent and some live music, too.

GN / Kellogg Park, 777 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, 48170; konachocolate.run.com.

Hello, Dolly!

Nov. 19-Dec. 1. One of Broadway's most enduring musicals (three revivals!) is given a gorgeous new production by director Jerry Zaks. Hilarity ensues as Dolly Gallagher

Levi travels to Yonkers to find a match for the miserly Horace Vandergelder.

DD / Fisher Theatre, 3011 W. Grand Blvd., Detroit, 48202; 313-872-1000 or broadwayindetroit.com.

Nick Offerman

Nov. 21. He's been a TV star for some time, but the release of 2014's American Ham showed Offerman's chops as a humorist. The All Rise tour is an evening of deliberate talking and light dancing (or so he says) and will certainly dish up some important lessons he's learned in life, through marriage and with woodworking.

BIG SUMMER IN 2020

June-September in The D

Summer 2020 will be transformational in Detroit. For the first time, the season hosts the North American International Auto Show (NAIAS) June 13-20 with tons of new indoor and outdoor activities throughout the city. With that, the metro area also marks the summer debuts of several new museum exhibits, festivals and events.

The Henry Ford announces Driven to Win: Racing in America, a new permanent 24,000-square-foot exhibition that tells the story of American auto racing. On June 13, the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) introduces Detroit Style: Car Design in the Motor City, 1950-2020, which runs through Jan. 10, 2021. Visitors to the city can also enjoy the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House's recently opened visitor center and its first exhibit, Driven by Design.

The day after the auto show closes, the DIA opens Van Gogh in America (June 21-Sept. 27), a blockbuster event celebrating the institute's status as the first U.S. museum to acquire a Vincent Van Gogh painting. The exhibit traces the story of the artist's introduction to America and features around 40 of his paintings and works from worldwide collections.

Square miles of metro Detroit.

84_F/15_F

In July and August, the average high is 84 and in January-February the low falls to 15. You can expect pretty much every type of weather — rain, sun, snow, sleet or hail — on any given day. We have all four seasons here, which makes for great variety.

30/60 MINUTES

Our airport is within 30 minutes of downtown Detroit and within 60 minutes of most metro Detroit destinations.

DETROIT METRO AIRPORT — DTW

DTW IS A MAJOR DELTA HUB THAT'S ONLY A 90-MINUTE FLIGHT — OR LESS — FROM 60 PERCENT OF THE COUNTRY'S POPULATION. ALL MAJOR DOMESTIC AIRLINES, FOUR LOW-COST CARRIERS AND SEVERAL INTERNATIONAL CARRIERS OFFER SERVICE FROM THE AIRPORT.

DRIVING TO THE AIRPORT

If you're coming from Detroit, the eastern burbs or the western way-beyonds, such as Ann Arbor, I-94 is the best route. It runs east and west. The airport is visible from the roadway, so it's hard to miss. Watch the signs and look for Exit 198 or 199. Access to all terminals is clear-cut from I-94, especially if you're headed to the North Terminal.

If you're coming from the western suburbs or much of Downriver (a loose term for 18 suburbs south of Detroit and "down" the Detroit River), take I-275. This one runs north and south. Keep your eyes out for Eureka Road, Exit 15. The McNamara Terminal, which is the home of anchor carrier Delta Air Lines, will be in your sight first.

If you should happen to miss your terminal while driving in the Detroit Metro Airport complex, you can simply circle around to reach it again.

FLY IN, FLY OUT

Detroit Metro Airport has two main terminals, McNamara and North. Together, they offer more than 100 shops, restaurants, customer conveniences and amenities, plus extra-wide moving walkways and connector shuttles. In the McNamara Terminal, there are two indoor trams and an on-site luxury Westin hotel.

GOOD EATS AT DTW

Eater Detroit (tinyurl.com/dtw-eat) offered up its best bets for good eats at Detroit Metro Airport, whether you're hanging in the McNamara and/or North terminals.

In the McNamara Terminal:

Bigalora Wood-Fired Cucina • Plum Market Wine Bar & Cafe • Andiamo • Cat Cora's Taproom • LongHorn Steakhouse • Vino Volo • Harvest & Grounds • Illy Coffee & Fountain Bar • P.F. Chang's • Sora • Reflections Restaurant & Lounge

In the North Terminal:

National Coney Island • Earl of Sandwich • Villa Pizza • Natural Break • Air Margaritaville • Atwater Brewery • Detroit Street Cafe • Cantoro Italian Market Trattoria

NEW DINING

Through 2020, DTW's North Terminal will see a host of new restaurants pop up, including Jolly Pumpkin Taphouse, Anita's Kitchen Lebanese Café, Detroit-based Common Grace Coffee Company, French bakery Brioche Dorée and chicken sandwich chain Chick-fil-A.

ROAD TIPS

70 MPH

Interstate speed limit

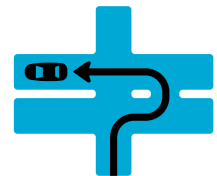

55: mph in the city

70: The maximum speed limit on metro Detroit highways and interstates.

But be careful, some, like the Southfield Freeway (M-39), have a posted 55 mph max.

THE MICHIGAN LEFT

HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS

When speaking to native Detroiters, use interstate numbers and the names for state or U.S. highways. Some basics:

- It's I-75, not the Fisher.
- Call it the Lodge instead of M-10; hop on Southfield, rather than M-39.
- Woodward Avenue (aka M-1).

FIND A SAFE HAVEN — PROJECT LIGHTHOUSE

If you're not sure which way to turn or your rental vehicle is giving you trouble (aka you locked the keys in the car) while in downtown Detroit, keep an eye out for a light-blue Lighthouse logo. The Lighthouse indicates a 24/7 Project Lighthouse safe haven that's ready to assist you. You can also call 313-471-6490. More than 30 businesses in The D currently sport the Lighthouse logo, including the GM Ren Cen, Ford Field, Greektown Casino-Hotel, Fox Theatre, TCF Center and the Westin Book Cadillac Detroit hotel.

CROSSING THE BORDER

INTERESTED IN PAYING A VISIT TO WINDSOR?

You can do so easily from Detroit using either the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel or the Ambassador Bridge. There's also the Blue Water Bridge in Port Huron.

Really — it's easy.

If you are a United States (U.S.) citizen, you will need one of the following identification documents to return to the U.S. by car.

U.S. Passport Book, U.S. Passport Card, Enhanced Driver's License, Trusted Traveler Program Cards NEXUS, SENTRI or FAST

For further information on passport applications, please visit travel.state.gov, crossingmadeeasy.com or call the National Passport Information Center at 877-487-2778.

Duty-Free

One of the bennies of going to Windsor is you can visit the duty-free shops. Lots of perfume, tobacco products and booze at great discounts. You may have to pay duties on these items when you enter Canada or re-enter the United States if you go crazy and spend more than the allowed personal exemption. Get more info at tunneldutyfree.com.

Spend 24 hours or more in the States, and the duty-free and Canadian tax exemptions on purchased goods get better and better.
